

HARRISONBURG, Jan. 24.—D. Edward Wright, cashier of the Bank of Grovetts, 12 miles southeast of here, awoke from his slumbers yesterday morning to find that a clever robber had relieved him of his money, which he had removed on his flight.

Among the other effects taken, according to the cashier's story to the city sheriff, W. L. Dillard, were a watch, a ring, a diamond brooch, and a trail to a home about three miles from here, where the cashier was told to have disclosed none of the stolen property, and were made.

The bank vault was dynamited on the morning of Jan. 30, and the deposit boxes were opened. A search of the vault disclosed approximately $40,000, which was taken and the thief apprehended.

Sister Receives Letter

Mabel Dixon's Death

ing of Her Refusal

"Rodney"—H u s b

Fails to Appear.

The body of Mrs. Rodney M. Bliss, who died in New York Sunday night, is expected to arrive in Danville this afternoon about four o'clock. A telegram received by Undertaker F. W. Townes from a funeral director in New York states that the body was started south yesterday afternoon and as it is nearly a day's run from New York, it is expected that one of the southern trains arriving this afternoon will bear the remains.

It was expected yesterday by Mrs. Mary M. Dixon, mother of the young woman that the remains would be here early this morning and that Rev. J. C. Holland would conduct the funeral at 3:30 p. m. today from the Monroe street home. These plans, however, had to be changed when it became known that the body would not reach here until late in the evening.

That there had been an estrangement between Rodney Bliss, a naval ensign during the war, stationed at Newport, R. I., and now employed in a brokerage office in Chicago, and his wife, became apparent yesterday.

Mrs. Bliss, yesterday morning, received from New York a letter from the young woman. This letter had been mailed by Rodney Bliss, and the cancellation stamp shows that it was received in the Brooklyn postoffice at noon on Sunday or several hours after the girl's death. It is surmised that this letter was written on Saturday evening, or just a few hours prior to the time when she is supposed to have gone down with Martin Ryan, and in whose company she lapsed into a critical condition which medical aid was unable to overcome.

The letter is written in affectionate and happy vein. She says that she was having a "fine time" and referred to the fact that she was sending her sister a pair of sport shoes from New York as a present. In another place she refers to "Rodney" (her

COMMISSION IS PROBING CHARGE

"Certain Citizens" Are Named By Watson On Reconsideration

Stormy Prelude to the Investigation of Charges Against Martin Is Seen in Courtroom—After Brief Adjournment Names Are Given to Commission Upon Demand—Witnesses Are Being Heard.

At one o'clock this afternoon the hearing before the police commission of the charge of collusion with bootleggers brought by "certain citizens" against Sergeant J. H. Martin promised to last for several days. The complainants have about thirty witnesses, of whom only four had been examined at one o'clock. The defense has summoned, it is said, over one hundred witnesses, though it is probable that many of these will not be used.

An impartial list of complainants (certain citizens) follows: J. P. Brooks, B. F. Carter, W. E. Gardner, D. B. Gardner, E. G. Moseley, M. O. Nelson and H. O. Kerns. It was impossible for the reporter to catch all of the names of the complainants as they were read and as the hearing was still in progress at the time of going to press a full list was unobtainable.

So far the hearing has developed only one fact that can reflect upon Sergeant Martin, and that only indirectly. That fact is that a feeling of jealousy and distrust has smoldered for years in the police department, flaring up from time to time and fanned into a blaze by recent developments. It would appear that on one side are Police Chief Bell and Sergeant John L. Edwards and Jailer J. P. Brooks, and their adherents, while on the other side stands Sergeant J. Hannibal Martin. And with Martin, for the most part, are members of his police relief.

This much was brought out by the testimony of Chief Bell at the hearing. Bell stated at the hearing that had feeling had existed in the police department for years, that he had always felt as though Sergeant Martin had opposed the policy that he advocated; that Sergeant Martin and his coterie were aligned against himself, Sergeant Edwards and others. The chief said that an investigation of Sergeant Martin had been considered about four years ago in connection with the "Kit" Hall trouble, when that policeman had resigned from the police force because of conduct unbecoming an officer, disorderly acts having been committed by him at the Hotel Pittsylvania and at the fair grounds. The chief was questioned by counsel for complainants in such a manner as to bring out that Sergeant Martin had overstepped his authority in this case by advising Officer Harris to make no arrest in the case. It was brought out on cross-examination that Officer Harris was not on Sergeant Martin's relief in a casual manner, it being shown that the sergeant was only connected with the case indirectly. The chief said that an investigation of the conduct of Sergeant Martin, at this time, was dropped when "Kit" Hall resigned from the force.

In a general manner Chief Bell tried to show that Sergeant Martin had not proven amenable to his authority, though no specific case of insubordination was cited by the chief. A great deal of Chief Bell's testimony was in regard to "Kit" Hall and his conduct as an emergency chauffeur. He said that he had warned Sergeant Martin that many rumors connected Frazier with bootlegging liquor, though he had never been convicted on such a charge and advised the sergeant not to use Frazier so often as a chauffeur. Chief Bell said that his advice in this case was disregarded and that Sergeant Martin continued to employ Frazier. It was shown that considerable feeling had been engendered in police circles by this fact and Chief Bell implied that the confidence in the sergeant was shaken by his intimacy with Frazier.

This was true to such an extent testified the chief that when information came to police headquarters of such a nature as to lead to definite steps looking to the arrest of Frazier, Chief Bell said that he had no objection to Sergeant Martin although the officer had his role on duty. Chief Bell said on the stand that the reason he did not entrust the matter to Sergeant Martin was because he did not think the officer would do all in his power to arrest the suspected offender.

Chief Bell also was questioned in detail by counsel for complainants. It was shown that a number of incidents that would discredit Sergeant Martin. The chief answered all the questions in such a manner that the implication was that he (the chief) did not trust Martin and that he never felt that Martin was exposing his regime.

Chief Bell read his letter of complaint, already presented to his body to the commission, and explained why he had written the letter. He said that he had heard many rumors against Sergeant Martin, some of which he knew were not true, some of which called for an investigation.

In cross-examination Chief Bell said that Sergeant Martin had been very active in catching bootleggers in fact had caught more bootleggers than any other officers. The chief also admitted that it was customary and considered proper for officers to get the most available chauffeur in emergency cases, and admitted further that Frazier was often the most available man and had given satisfaction.

Ed Disharoon was the next witness called by the prosecution, but was not present. An effort was made to have Jailer Brooks go on the stand and tell what he had heard Disharoon say. The police commission ruled this as inadmissible.

The testimony of E. V. Covington, ex-jailer and admitted violator of many laws, was interesting. He told

Y. M. B. C. To Stage Membership Drive

One thousand members is the goal of the Young Men's Business Club of Danville.

That goal will be reached and passed during the week of February 9th-15th, according to W. E. Meade, who heads the club, and scores of members, who have given the enthusiastic endorsement to the membership program.

During the last week there have been a number of committee meetings, at which the work preliminary to the campaign was carefully outlined. A foundation is being established on which to base the membership appeal. This appeal will be of a very intensive character, and it is thought that, through the whirlwind canvass which is being arranged, the city will be completely covered within three days. Nothing will be left undone to present to the male residents of this city, between the ages of 21 and 40, inclusive, the vital necessity of joining up for "A Better Danville" through affiliation with this aggressive and progressive association of business men, whose work has made so effectively for improvement along many lines.

Each of the more than three hundred members will be asked to secure at least four additional members during the canvass, and it is confidently believed that when the roll is called at the conclusion of the campaign there will be more than 1,200 names on the register.

Through a union of forces and concentrated effort the organization has shown what can be done, with relatively small capital, to advance the interests of a community, and the appeal now is to invest in the community through membership in the club in order that an even greater work may be accomplished.

Sharp Spat On Postoffice Issue

By GEORGE H. MANNING (Washington Correspondent of The Danville Bee).

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A storm of protest has reached Washington from the patrons of the postoffice at Willis, Floyd county, Virginia, against the efforts of the Republicans to oust Postmaster James H. Conduff, whose term has several years to run.

Congressman James P. Woods has filed with the Postoffice Department a protest against the removal of the postmaster said to represent the views of 95 per cent. of the office patrons. The protest claims that the services of Conduff have been highly satisfactory—that there is no complaint of insubordination against him. The charges brought against him by a few republicans are said to be based on the merest technicalities, and in no way do they affect the postmaster's character or the service he has rendered.

A report made by inspectors who were sent to Willis yesterday to act "something on" Conduff, that would warrant a request for his resignation, commends Conduff on the excellent condition of his records. The request for Conduff's resignation is based, it is understood, on the charge that he does not devote eight hours a day to the office, but there is no complaint that he has not done everything necessary for the proper conduct of the office.

Mullen Acquitted By Jury Quickly

Man Who Shot Edwin Skinner Tried of Murdering Former Danville Mar.

LYNCHBURG, Va., Jan. 23.—W. H. Mullen, of Washington, D. C., accused of the murder of Edwin Skinner, of Danville, in a shooting scrape in Mullen's room in the Carroll Hotel the night of December 4, was acquitted by a jury in corporation court late yesterday.

No attempt has been made by Mullen to deny the shooting. According to police and other witnesses who were first on the ground, Mullen immediately admitted the shooting, but maintained that he shot in self defense, after he had been attacked by Skinner who, Mullen alleged, had been drinking heavily.

The entire defense hinged on Mullen's story of self defense, which was sustained by the only eye witness to the shooting, Henry Tanner, a friend of Mullen. Both Mullen and Tanner told connected stories which the state was unable to break down under the most rigid questioning.

In his opening statement for the commonwealth, John W. Carter, of Danville, assisting "Commonwealth's Attorney" Yancey in the prosecution of Mullen, contented himself with outlining his connection with the case as private counsel and giving a brief resume of the incidents which he believed led up to the case, as well as the circumstances surrounding the shooting in the hotel room following a drunken argument between Skinner and Mullen in the presence of Harry Tanner, witness for the defense, according to the testimony offered in the court.

New York Salesman Canvassing Homes, Alleged to Have Insulted West End Woman in Her Home.

Richard R. Ashton, of New York City, was yesterday given a hearing before the mayor on a charge of using indecent and improper language in the presence of a young woman at her home, 144 West Main. A fine of $25 and costs was imposed on Ashton.

A telephone call was received at the police station yesterday morning between 10 and 11 o'clock, a woman's voice on the other end of the wire asking exactly that an officer be sent to her home at once on West Main street. Police Officer W. C. Talley drove to the scene and on arriving the woman gave her name as Mrs. Covington. Efforts today to ascertain the given name or initials of Mrs. Covington were fruitless. When an inquiry was made at the house by a reporter over the telephone this morning, the person answering the telephone refused to divulge the initials of Mrs. Covington. The warrant was not served on the woman and the police said they were unaware of them.

The young woman told the officer that she had just been accosted by a man, who claimed that he was selling rugs and that he had made improper comments and obscene advances to her. She stated that the man came to her house and representing himself as a salesman of rugs and she desired to make a sale to her. She said that she had been conversing with him and he became so intimate and personal that she screamed and ran upstairs and the man, a stranger, followed her to the second floor. The woman said she had advanced him $25.00 for a rug. The officer was given a complete description and shown the direction in which the man went. New York license tag and could be easily identified as Officer Talley as he was aware of his presence in town. He was with two other New Yorkers. However, nothing was seen of the man and Talley decided to go to his boarding place on Ridge street. The man's two associates were there but Ashton was absent. Talley questioned the two men in a way which would not arouse suspicion and was finally convinced that Ashton was the man sought. He concluded that he would remain at the house until Ashton's arrival. When the latter arrived, the officer placed him under arrest, making known the charges against him. He was taken to the police station where a trial was soon given. This taking place about 12 o'clock.

During yesterday numerous complaints of the same nature were heard by the police, they say, but only one formal charge was brought against the northern man. Ashton came here several days ago with two other New York men and have been canvassing the town. They seem to be traveling a territory in the South as they traveled through the country in a truck bearing a New York license.

Ashton at first pleaded with the officer to let him go, showing several lodge badges and papers and said that "it would run me." Talley made it known that it was his duty to arrest him, and after Ashton saw that his pleadings were fruitless he became abusive to the officer.

300 Colored People Turn to and Under Fire Chief Mitchell Meet Situations

Two Houses Destroyed.

Fire Chief Lewis Mitchell yesterday morning commanded the largest fire company he has ever had under him, nearly three hundred colored people whose energetic work probably saved the suburb of Almagro from being burned out. The first chief said today that the colored people by cool judgment and determined work undoubtedly prevented a heavy loss and he had a good word to say for the volunteer workers.

The fire broke out in the morning, and Chief Mitchell, who was in a four-room cottage suddenly became engulfed and within a few minutes, or before the alarm could be given in the neighborhood, Jim Hodge's home adjoining was also ablaze. Both being frame structures, they were quickly aflame from end to end. The time of the fire, which looked as though nothing could impede the fire, which was already threatening the homes of Margaret Penn and Charles and Mary E. Smith on either side of the fire.

Almagro has no fire protection and it has been raining water. These were there, so to speak, with a will and drawing water from wells, impressing buckets, pans and coal stoves into service and started to combat the fiery element. Word was sent to the Patton street fire station and Chief Mitchell, knowing that Almagro is a suburb of Chicago, with no plans to which hose can be attached, hastened to the scene in his car to render such aid as he could.

By that time also word had been sent to the downtown section, and colored men and women who live at Almagro left their occupation and rushed to the scene. Reinforcements from Brunswick hurried across the hill, and when Chief Mitchell arrived, there was a small army of willing workers, only in need of an executive head. Chief Mitchell took charge of the situation. Bed quilts were heaved to the roofs of a burning structure and told on the roofs, and others were suspended from the eaves and constantly soaked with water, making an emergency fire wall breaking the heat. Others were scattered about with water ready to quench flying embers as they landed on other roofs. At the height of the fire, the wind shifted in favor of the volunteers, with the result that the fire was confined to the two houses which were completely destroyed. Some damage was caused by Hodge's fire. Chief Mitchell had none but she was saved in saving some of her things. Many people in the neighborhood carried their belongings out of doors.

Statement Made In Regard to Number of "Fares"

In yesterday's issue of the Register and Bee in the account of the election of officers of the Danville Traction and Power Co., there appeared a statement to the effect that the report of the Vice President "indicated the falling off in number of passengers carried since the 6 cent fare was adopted."

One of the officers of the company has called attention to the fact that this statement is incorrect.

According to this official, the 6 cent fare was granted in July, 1920 and the first nine months thereafter showed an increase each month over the corresponding month of the preceding year.

The report of the Vice President showed that during the first three months of 1921 there was an increase in number of passengers carried as compared with the same three months in 1920, but that during the last nine months of 1921 there was a decrease in the number of passengers carried as compared with the same period of 1920. However, during six of these months of 1920 the 6 cent fare was in effect.

This official stated that experience has shown business conditions affect considerably the travel on the street cars. When business is brisk in other lines, travel is very much heavier than when business is dull. The falling off in travel during the last months of 1921 is attributable to the adverse business conditions existing during these months.

According to this same official, the Street Car Company was at a heavy expense during 1921 for the renewal of ties and re-paving streets. For instance, one-half of the entire cost of the smooth paving on Main street between the Municipal building and Mount Vernon church was borne by the Street Car company, and in addition to this the company was at the expense of new ties on this section of its track, and will be at the additional expense of the coming spring of leveling up that part of the pavement on Main street between the tracks, which has gotten in bad condition on account of the settling of the base of the pavement between the ties.

The Street Car company had also to pay its part of re-surfacing North Main street, Holbrook avenue, West Main street from Main street to the north, also its part of the concrete paving on South Main street.

ROTARIANS FEAST AND MANY ORATE

Dinner Is Followed By Discussion of Burning Issue of Weekly Feeds

At a dinner of the Rotary Club attended by a large percentage of the membership last night, the club deferred for two weeks the decision as to whether it shall have its luncheon weekly in future or shall adhere to the present plan of bi-weekly luncheons. The issue had been several times threshed out, and it was expected that last night would bring a decision, but at the last moment it was decided that a mail vote would be taken during the ensuing fortnight and the result made known at the next bi-weekly luncheon. Several members were absent, but it is not likely that their absence influenced the result in postponing the matter.

The discussion produced a feast of polemic oratory in the course of which Gus Booth and Jiggs Withers figuratively puffed the pipe of peace and agreed in their disagreement. Bert Crowell remarked that the club appeared to be divided into two classes—orators and oysters, or words to that effect—and that at the risk of being placed in the oratorical category, he desired to state his reasons for doubting the wisdom of the weekly luncheon plan. He made a very practical argument for adherence to the bi-weekly plan.

Clare Henry Watkins was recognized and related that he had taken the trouble to secure a mail vote of the female Rotarians or the Rotarionesses on this burning issue with the result that the vote of the ladies who rule the men was overwhelmingly adverse to the weekly luncheon plan. He did not attempt to tell any Presbyterian jokes, even in the absence of the parson.

Spontaneous chorus, "He's a prevaricator."

Adoption of a resolution postponing action terminated the debate. Sandy Conway brought up the matter of the drive for $15,000 for the D. M. I. in order to pay the debt on that institution and assure its acceptance and operation by the Synod of Virginia as a Presbyterian preparatory school for boys and young men.

While many of the members expressed sympathy with the general sentiment that the Rotary Club was being run much of a driving force for all sorts of aims and objects that it was likely to diminish its influence and cheapen its endorsement if it undertook to endorse every proposition which appealed for its aid, it was agreed that this matter was one of which an expression should be made. Many expressed sympathy with the proposition, and Harry Fitzgerald made an earnest plea for favorable action on the endorsement proposition.

Some were ready to suit the action to the word and crack the whip for the inauguration of a movement to make the drive effective then and there, but the rules, regulations or by-laws of the club were cited up as an obstacle, and the club contended itself with authorizing the appointment of a committee to co-operate with the Chamber of Commerce committee which has assumed responsibility for putting the movement over.

During the discussion Robinson T. A. Burton, superintendent of the D. M. I. and the man in large measure responsible for its development and for putting the institution in such a condition that it is already a valuable educational asset and the nucleus for building a great school, addressed the club. He related some of his own personal experiences and cited those of at least two other citizens in enabling worthy boys to continue their education at the Institute. Reviewing the standing and the high standard of scholarship attained in two years by the Institute, he pointed with pardonable pride to the record made by its graduates at the government schools and at colleges and universities all over the country and expressed satisfaction that the management of the Institute had been able to make the school such a valuable asset. He cited an expression of the founder of the Institute, Colonel L. H. Sanderson, now of Washington, that the club name might be perpetuated by the success of the present regime, a home in which Colonel Burton cordially acquiesced. Colonel Burton pledged his cordial effort to do anything and everything in his power to promote the success of the school in the future.

Rotarian Walter Brown, a member of the board of trustees of the Synod, said that the question arose of the club's endorsement, but the old members of the club, an announcement which will find audience.

Some speaker in citing the value of the D. M. I. said that it had turned out men who were worth $15,000 to the community as a result of their advancement at the D. M. I. whereupon Albert Patton and Gilmore Holland arose and bowed their acknowledgments and wanted to cash in on the spot, if they could find the spot.

The endorsement of the movement after the discussion was still standing in its unanimity even those who were originally opposed to using the club for drives refrained from expressing any dissent.

The club cordially expressed its sympathy for Jim Pritchett, who was detained at home by reason of the illness of his little son, James III, and approved the sending of such an assurance to the absentee. The fear of the club was not the only one for Rotarian Herbert Hendel tried himself in preparing an especially varied and well selected menu.

Rotarian Powell, of Lynchburg, was introduced and acknowledged the presentation, contributing the experience of his club as favorable to the weekly luncheon plan. Harrison Holloway who is out of the city, was one of the noteworthy absentees, and Peadar Conway is not yet quite in shape to do justice to a Rotary feed and frolic.

The meeting was particularly serene and amiable, no disagreement ruffling the placid surface of the affair. The club's chief executive, J. J. Barker, in his brief and pleasant address, stated as a result of the recent fire, his fire voice contributed to the earlier moments of the meeting, but, regretably to his fellows, he had to leave early.

The club's first graduate school of science, and the opinion is ventured that its proverbial stillness if he had entered a Rotarian instead of a student.

Made at Home Page Appeals to Many Local Men

A feature which will be incorporated in The Register next Sunday and which should commend itself to the manufacturers of this locality, will be a page devoted to setting forth the products of various kinds of this section. Already a number of manufacturers have evinced a keen interest in the plan and have agreed to be represented.

The reason for the plan is simple and originated with the conception that the people of this section should be educated up to a better knowledge of commodities made at home. Many things that are needed in every-day life that are made at home by home people. By buying these home-made products the purchaser not only gets the article desired, but also helps home industries.

On the other hand many manufacturers neglect to see the possibilities of the home field, seeking work in distant markets for their products. It is the old story of the opportunity lost by advertising intelligently the home manufacturer can reach the local buying public. This is the end aimed at in the Sunday feature page—"Made at Home."

Agricultural "Bloc"

Wants Salaries Cut

RICHMOND, Jan. 24.—The agricultural conference, or bloc, of the general assembly in session tonight, adopted resolutions opposing "as a general rule" any increase in salaries and favoring reductions where it can be accomplished without injustice to office holders. Reference was to the officers of the state, but a proposal to advocate the total abolition of the fee system was rejected.

Brad Beverly, of Fauquier, is chairman of the bloc; J. M. Hurt, of Nottoway, is vice-chairman, and W. J. Story, of Southampton, is secretary. The central committee is composed of the officers and of Senators Hening, of Chesterfield, and Gravatt, of Carolina, and Delegates Gibson, of Culpeper; Ozlin, of Lunenburg, and Hicks, of Scott. Two others are to be chosen. There are now 39 members of the bloc.

The Shakespeare Study Club will meet tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon with Mrs. J. L. Bagby, on South Main avenue.

THE TIME TO TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

When You Feel a Little "Off" It Will Bring You Back to Health

"Some people never need any medicine at all. They are, as the saying goes, 'strong as a bull.' They are mighty lucky. Most people need a good tonic once in a while. They take cold, or through overwork or social activity do not get enough sleep; many eat improper food and thus hurt the digestion. It is mighty wise to take Cude's Pepto-Mangan with meals for a few weeks and build up. One cannot have too much good health. Pepto-Mangan gives you plenty of red blood, and everybody knows that red blood means feeling good and looking good all the time. Sold by druggists in liquid and tablet form."

Garland Has New Free Love Gospel

Young Millionaire Willing to Be "Shared" by Other Woman. But His Wife Objects.

NEW BEDFORD, Jan. 24.—Mrs. Charles Garland left her idealistic husband, whom she once so stoutly championed, because she found the idea of sharing him with another woman "abhorrent."

The quoted word is Garland's. The youth who first rejected a $1,000,000 estate and then accepted it to give to others today told for the first time the story behind his estrangement from his wife. It is the narrative of a newer and freer love. The object of it is Miss Lillian Conrad, Boston art student and one-time secretary to young Garland's mother.

This and more Garland explained today as he sat on the kitchen table in his ramshackle North Carver farm house, flicking away the ashes of his cigarette against the remnants of his breakfast eggs and incidentally dropping some into the dream pitcher.

Setting his long body comfortably on the table, Garland answered in detail, without any trace of reticence or embarrassment, many questions about his personal relations and his philosophy concerning them.

The main facts are these: For the present, Garland's love belongs to Lillian Conrad.

He boldly admits they have lived together as man and wife and expect to do so again.

He does not care to be divorced from Mrs. Garland, but if Mrs. Garland sues him for divorce he will not contest the action.

He sees no prospect of a reconciliation with his wife through his love for their baby, Margaret, or through the approaching advent of another baby.

He admits that the law may intervene to prevent him from living with Miss Conrad or to punish them and asserts he is ready to face the contingency if it arises.

Garland explained in detail his future attitude toward his children. He proposes to manifest always a fatherly interest in and affection for them. But he would not consider living with his wife for their sake. His companionship could not compensate them, he says, for living in a home where there would be no love and harmony.

Garland stands for what is popularly known as "free love." His ideas about love and relations between the sexes have no connection with the vague idealistic notions which prompted him to refuse his legacy of $1,500,000 and later to claim it with the avowed intent of distributing it for the benefit of humanity.

The only responsibility that he recognizes is the responsibility which, he says, a man owes to himself, of self-development and self-expression. His idea of self-development is to do what he can to the best of his ability, and of consequences. These impressions are not interferences, but statements of thoughts put into words by Garland himself.

The personality of a third young woman enters into the strange angle which Garland is weaving about himself. The third woman is Miss Doris Benson, who may purchase a farm near Garland's and come to "work out her problems" practically side by side with him.

Miss Benson, now a student at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, is formerly a ward of Garland's mother on her estate at Baywind Buzzards Bay.

Garland said that both Miss Benson and Miss Conrad have come to April Farm, as his North Carver place is called, and stayed with him for a day or more at a time. Miss Benson's relations have been purely friendly. Both girls spent the night under his roof, sometimes together, sometimes separately.

Asked where Miss Benson is now, Garland said that he honestly didn't know where she was when he recently left her last known address, No. 15 St. Charles street, Boston, and would not know until she wrote to him. He said:

"Miss Conrad and I hope to live together for an indefinite time."

"Suppose you should cease to love Miss Conrad as you have ceased to love your wife, would you continue to live with her?" he was asked.

"If living with her meant being alive, then under other conditions, I would not live with her," was the answer.

Garland disclaimed any responsibility for what might be Miss Benson's fate if he should tire of her after an idyllic period of mutual companionship. He said he believed that men and women were equal when it came to meeting difficulties and bearing burdens. It was not his business to take her responsibilities upon his shoulders.

proven that Mullen was attacked following an argument resulting from alleged grievances Skinner held at the moment against the defendant, that Mullen was cut twice by a knife in the hand of Skinner and that in self defense he shot Skinner. The testimony was corroborated by Tanager, a clothing salesman, whose testimony was not taken in any important details. He admitted that he was a friend of the defendant, saying that he was "very fond of him."

Mrs. Kate Brown and Miss Sue Brown, nurses who had charge of Skinner from the time he was taken there, until his death, testified that he made several disjointed remarks about the affair and about being friends with Mullen, but that at no time did he say anything blaming the defendant. They did not question him, they said, but attempted to quiet him. One dose of morphine had been administered before the arrival of the first nurse and later she gave him a quarter of a grain more according to the testimony given.

According to both nurses, Skinner repeatedly before his death expressed the opinion that he was going to die and made random remarks about not knowing Mullen had just shot, adding "to think that we were friends when this happened." He was anxious to have one message sent before his death, said the nurse with him at the time of his death, but made no further requests and did not say a word of blame against Mullen.

Dr. E. A. Waugh told of examination of Skinner and first aid treatment administered. He also declared in direct testimony that he found the revolver in Mullen's direction, on the floor under the side of the hotel room. Examination disclosed no discolored area such as powder marks, he said. He expressed the opinion that all were drinking and that Tanager was "more or less maudlin." He asked no questions, he said.

Police Officers S. C. Foster, of Paris, J. G. Woodward, Jr. and P. P. Monaghan were then examined giving further details. Paris said that Tanager was "pretty drunk" and that he "couldn't get any sense out of him." Woodward substantiated this testimony while Monaghan declared that he understood what Tanager said to him. At this point the court refused to allow the witness testimony recounting a conversation with Tanager, which described the alleged details of the shooting. W. W. Hamilton, night clerk of the hotel, told of being summoned by a call from the room of Mullen's room just as he started up there following an alarm given by a bell boy.

The commonwealth devoted considerable time in an effort to shake the testimony of Harry Tanager who gave a complex, consistent story of the whole affair starting with a preliminary meeting in the room of a man named Harvey earlier in the evening of the shooting. According to his story and the testimony of the defendant, Skinner and Mullen met him (Tanager) into Mullen's room to take a drink. Later, after making an unsuccessful attempt to persuade somebody in the city both Mullen and Skinner went out on the street and stayed about 20 minutes, leaving Tanager in the room.

They returned to the room again, according to the testimony given by the defense, the point of discussion being something Skinner said. Mullen of having said about him in North Carolina. Mullen declared Skinner wanted to borrow $500. At any rate, according to Tanager, there was a hull in the argument and Skinner, however, Mullen said, pulled out the stopper of a liquor bottle. Both took a drink, said Tanager, while he stepped into the bathroom. Returning, he said he found Skinner cussing. Mullen saw him clinch as he came in the door. He gave details of the struggle and declared he did not move the body until it was fired. He declared he saw the knife in question drop from Skinner's hand. He was shifted considerably during his testimony and Attorney Carter and numerous spectators were noted by the defense counsel.

Mullen declared he saw a pistol for him, then he fired, and fired in self-defense. Dr. J. W. Deane testified as to slight cuts sustained by Mullen, attended by him and an eye doctor, underwear and shirt which were cut about the necks, long was examined by the jury.

Fire Loss At Kinston Will Reach $300,000

KINSTON, Jan. 24.—Insurance men this afternoon estimated the damage in last night's fire here at $300,000 with insurance of $125,000. The blaze destroyed the Hunter building at No. 107 South Queen, and gutted the three-story building at No. 109. Those who sustained heaviest losses were Mrs. Alice Hunter, $200,000 with insurance less than half of that sum; The Marion Trust company, A. J. Sutton and Sons, dry goods dealers; Sample Shoe store and Caswell Banking and Trust company. The Suttons and shoe store owners had losses of $30,000 each with insurance of probably 50 per cent.

The firemen's battle with the flame lasted until well after daylight; the dawn found the neighborhood of fire a scene of destruction, with ice covered wires strewn over the streets and the largest office structure in the city in ruins. For hours last night the blaze threatened the destruction of two more blocks of the city.

Four persons known to have been injured, none seriously, included Rev. Dwight Ball, a Universalist minister, struck by debris from a falling wall while working as a volunteer fireman; a woman who had narrowly escaped from the upper stories of the Hunter building.

Last Letter From Mrs. Bliss Shows An Estrangement

husband, stating that a few days previously he had called upon her and that she had told him that she would not see him. This paragraph pointing to an estrangement is further borne out by a number of the family, who understand that Mr. and Mrs. Bliss had not been living together for about two years.

The effort to elicit some reply from Rodney Bliss by members of the Dixon family failed. Yesterday a message was sent to the husband by Gordon Haraway, Mrs. Bliss' brother-in-law. In this telegram he acquainted Mrs. Bliss with his family's desires. The telegram was addressed to Rodney M. Bliss, care of Stacey and Braun, 108 South LaSalle street, Chicago, Ill. No answer was received. Another more urgent message was sent today and this, also, up to the present time, has remained unanswered.

Bliss has not thus far put in his appearance at New York to make any arrangements for the funeral so far as the members of his family are aware, and they do not expect him to be here for the funeral.

The latest message received from New York stated that the post mortem of Mrs. Bliss' remains failed to reveal the cause of her death. The deputy medical examiner was not satisfied with the autopsy and certain vital organs were turned over to chemical experts for determining whether or not traces of narcotics can be found. The failure of the autopsy has resulted in a puzzling situation for the New York authorities, who are still holding Martin Ryan without bail. They do not know what charge to level against him. The theory of the New York police is that the girl was criminally assaulted, and he is still being held on the charge.

Diligent enquiries have been made here relative to the supposed use of drugs by the young girl. Members of the family questioned deny emphatically that she was an addict. A good many others state that they had never heard of the girl taking drugs, but one Danville druggist has been found who says that the young woman at no recent date was in a drug store trying to secure some form of opiate which appears to have been refused her.

"Blazing Feminist" Wife of Former Marylander

GRAND FORKS, N. D., Jan. 24.—Prof. Albert Levin, of the University of North Dakota, secretly married to Elsie Hill, Washington self-styled "blazing feminist," militant suffragist and chairman of the National Woman's party, who today declared he is the luckiest man in the world, is a native of Maryland, having been born at Woodbine.

His luck, he added, was in the fact he had married a woman, one who would not allow the husband to be a czar.

Professor Levin met Miss Hill while he was an assistant professor of law in George Washington University, Washington. Miss Hill formerly was a teacher of French in the Washington central high school. He became professor of law at the University of North Dakota, where he has taught at College and Columbia.

Woman Freezes In Open Rowboat

PORT WING, Wis., Jan. 24.—Caught out in the ice, a woman in a rowboat was frozen in the water here Saturday, when a severe gale sprung up. Alfred Peterson, a fisherman of Knife River, Minn., reached here last night after his wife had perished in the open rowboat.

He said, just by the way, which saved all during Saturday when the temperature dropped to 10 below zero, the boat was a record for its size, as the small boat, with its 10-horse power motor, was caught in the ice, and a huge wave came over it. He said he was in the boat for about 10 hours, and that he was almost frozen when he was rescued.

SCIENTISTS REOLUTIONIZE

Treatment for Thin, Nervous, Run-down, Anemic Conditions of Children, Adults and Aged People.

For the first time since we have conducted our drug store we are able to offer to our customers a remedy for the above mentioned conditions that has been found and approved by the leading medical scientists of the world. The remedy is SUSTO Nutrient Tablets.

At some time or other we all get tired, run down, thin, nervous, and we are without energy or vitality. We are irritable and easily annoyed. This is because we are lacking a sufficient amount of the elements which are essential to life. SUSTO Nutrient Tablets supply these elements from the most potent and purest sources.

Leading medical men of the country have for some time been advocating this treatment instead of medicine for such conditions. Now science has proved the value of SUSTO. It has been tested for many months and approved by a Professor of Physiological Chemistry at one of the greatest American Medical Colleges. In the report of his test he said: "In all cases of a general run-down system, or in convalescence, SUSTO played a very important part in bringing the patient back to a healthy body weight. It is especially valuable in cases of anorexia, indigestion, and general weakness. It is a most valuable and potent tonic."

Therefore we feel very confident in recommending SUSTO to all thin, run-down, nervous, anemic conditions, to feeble old people, and delicate children.

If you try it for one month and do not feel better in every way, we will refund your money. SUSTO is sold by McCall's Drug & Food Store, Inc., 1000 Broadway, New York City.

Bank Cashier Slept Soundly

HARRISONBURG, Jan. 24.—Dr. Edward Wright, cashier of the Bank of Grovetts, 12 miles southeast of here, awoke from his slumbers yesterday morning to find that a clever robber had relieved him of his clothes, which he had removed on retiring.

Among the other effects taken, according to the cashier's story, was the county sheriff, W. L. Dillard, were the keys to the bank. A bloodhound was secured, and followed a trail to a mountain home about three miles from the bank, where the scent was apparently lost. A search of the home is said to have disclosed none of the alleged stolen property, and no arrests were made.

The Grovetts bank vault was dynamited on the morning of Jan. 30, last, and safety deposit boxes were rifled of bonds and securities amounting to approximately $40,000. The men who staged this theft have never been apprehended.

Underwood Urges Speed on Far East

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A plea that the Far Eastern discussions be brought to an end without too much hesitation over details was made by the Far Eastern Committee today by Senator Underwood.

Many people, he said, could not understand why these negotiations were taking so long. He declared that China already had been given what might be called a "Nagna Churna" by the conference and asked why the deliberations should be drawn out by an effort to explore a tangle of details.

ORDER REJECTION OF ALL RAILROAD SHOP RULES NOW

Committee in Circular to Workers Instructs Institution of New Disputes

CHICAGO, Jan. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Rejection of all railroad shop rules, recently promulgated by the United States railroad labor board, which cut time and one-half pay for extra work from the shopmen's wages was ordered today by the committee of 100, acting for the six railway shop crafts.

In a circular issued to the 500,000 shop workers in the country, the committee ordered new disputes instituted with the railway managements immediately over these rules, and failing an agreement, the disputes were ordered taken to the labor board for hearing. The circular was signed by the international president of the six shop crafts unions.

The seven rejected rules, the greatest dissatisfaction centered on rule 6, providing straight time for regularly assigned work on Sundays and holidays. This was previously paid for at time and one-half. The committee proposed a substitute rule reinstating time and one-half.

The board's new rules covering employees assigned to emergency work and to fill temporary vacancies at outlying points were also rejected by the committee because they took away certain pay provisions contained in the old national agreement made during federal control. Under rule 10, emergency employees are paid for time worked in accordance with the practice at the home station and straight time for all time waiting or traveling.

The union committee directed institution of a dispute to reinstate time and one-half and double time to cover all time spent on the emergency assignment whether working, waiting or traveling.

Similar provisions will be asked in disputes to be created over rules 12 and 14, applying to men assigned to temporary vacancies at outlying points and to men on road work who leave and return to their home stations daily.

The board's new rule allowing the carriers to require a physical examination for all applications for employment was also rejected to the system of federations to re-negotiate with individual roads. The committee directed that the dispute be instituted to have this rule modified in the interests of the employees.

Another important rule by which the board made it possible for the roads to hire any man familiar with the use of tools as a repairer came under fire by the committee. A new rule was proposed over which the carriers are directed to open negotiations. The proposed rule would allow helpers and helper-apprentices with less than four years' experience to be advanced to mechanic's grade, and to men in the use of mechanic's tools to be hired. This would be the hiring of any carpenter who had not had mechanical experience.

Three other rules were accepted, subject to the interpretation of the committee, placed upon them and the remaining rules were agreed to.

Some revision of certain of the over-time rules was said to be likely as they were found to permit of different interpretations as they stand at present. Railroad officials, however, declared there was little likelihood of reinstating any of time and one-half provisions wiped out by the board.

Treasury Still Opposes Bonus

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—Treasury opposition to a soldiers bonus remains unchanged, but if there is to be a bonus it must be provided through taxation in addition to taxes imposed by existing law. Secretary Mellon said tonight in a letter to Chairman Fordney of the House ways and means committee. Any attempt to provide for the bonus through the use of principal or interest of the foreign debt to this country, he contended, "would be futile, as well as unwise."

Mr. Mellon's letter was in response to a request from Mr. Fordney for an expression of the views of the secretary and the treasury department on the government financial outlook for the coming year and a half and for suggestions as to legislation. Submitting detailed estimates of government receipts and expenditures for the fiscal years 1922 and 1923 and the treasury plan for refunding the short dated debt. Mr. Mellon declared no allowance has been made for any extra-ordinary expenditures for a soldiers' bonus, which would cost, on the most conservative estimates, he said, probably not less than $850,000,000, in the first two years.

"The figures," he contended, "show that there will be no available surplus but more probably a deficit, and with the enormous refunding operations which the treasury has to conduct it would be dangerous in the extreme to attempt to finance the expenditures involved in the bonus through new borrowings. The position of the treasury remains unchanged, but if there is to be a soldiers' bonus, it is clear that it must be provided for through taxation, and through taxation in addition to the taxes imposed by existing law."

On the other hand, no indirect means of financing the bonus would make it any less an expense to be borne in the long run by the taxpayer. Mr. Mellon declared taking up the proposal to use the foreign debt as a basis for bonus payments.

It is impossible, he maintained, in advance of funding arrangements to estimate what may be collected on the foreign debt in the near future by way of principal or interest. The obligations, which are in the form of demand obligations, are not, he asserted, in shape to sell to the public, while to offer them with the guarantee of this government would interfere with the treasury's refunding operations and prove more expensive than the sale of direct obligations of the government.

"At the same time," he added, "it would enormously complicate the international situation and certainly embarrass the funding negotiations."

It would accomplish nothing, Mr. Mellon argued, to set aside the foreign debt for the payment of the bonus, even if enough could be realized in time.

Discussing the financial outlook of the government, Mr. Mellon presented detailed figures covering budget estimates which he said indicated a deficit of over $24,000,000 for 1922, and a deficit of over $187,000,000 for 1923. Not allowing for $50,000,000 requested by the shipping board for the payment of claims, $7,000,000 to be spent for Russian relief by the United States grain corporation, $5,000,000 to be paid as the 1923 installments under the treaty with Columbia, a total of $112,000,000.

To overcome these deficits, he explained, expenditures must be reduced in "the aggregate" by about $200,000,000 in the next two years, while at the same time the government faces a heavy shrinkage of receipts. In view of the depression in business, he added, there is grave doubt whether the estimates of receipts which appear in the budget can be realized.

The overshadowing problem of the treasury, Mr. Mellon declared, was in the handling of the public debt, amounting at the end of the past year to $38,483,984,351, of which $6,500,000 falls due within the next 12 months. The refunding of this vast maturity, he asserted, would require the treasury's constant attention from now on.

How much additional taxation would be necessary to pay a soldiers' bonus, Mr. Mellon declared, would be difficult to estimate but on the basis of the McCumber bill it would appear that the total cost would be about $2,330,000,000, of which at least $850,000,000 would fall due in the first two years of operation and possibly as high as $1,000,000,000 if an unexpectedly large number of veterans should choose cash. The minimum cost he placed at about $1,600,000,000 based on cash payments and the maximum cost at about $2,300,000,000, if all the veterans should take certificates in lieu of cash.

"Moonshine" Gold Search Is Ended

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—The search of Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale University, for "moonshine" gold came to an end today when he was informed by an unidentified scientist that the German who had claimed the discovery of a synthetic gold had been killed when an Indianapolis and Cincinnati traction twin street car automobile at a crossing here tonight. The dead was Calvin S. Smith, 41 years old, his wife, Mary Smith, 36; Neal Trester, 30, of this city, and John J. Wright, aged 46, of Martinsville, Ind.

Per centum solution tried in vain to make organic iron. At last the problem was solved so that you may now obtain the life giving iron in your blood from any drug store under the name of "Nujol Iron."

It has been arranged to give every purchaser of Nujol Iron, who wishes to get on fast or increase his vitality, a large regular size package of Genuine Nujol Iron Tablets absolutely free. He comes to the only famous Brand Nujol Iron Tablets. Do not be misled by imitations which often contain drugs.

process was a fraud and had a prison record.

The German who is alleged to have discovered synthetic gold told the professor that his gold was made from mercury by an electric vacuum furnace process.

Pope's Successor Probably Italian

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—As a result of the death of Cardinal Almaraz y Santoe, archbishop of Toledo, Spain, which occurred one day after the death of the pope, it was said here today the non-Italian cardinals who will enter the next conclave will be reduced to 21. It is considered probable here that Cardinal O'Connell, who is said to belong to the group supporting the election of Cardinal Merry del Val, will not arrive before the proclamation of the new pope, nor will Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, who is said to be one of the group supporting the election of Cardinal Gasparri.

Other cardinals, who it is believed now probably will not participate in the opening of the conclave are Be-gin, archbishop of Quebec; Cavalcanti, archbishop of Rio de Janeiro, and Prigo, archbishop of Naples. Such an event there will be but 55 cardinals present at the conclave on February 2.

It is expected that on the first ballot the votes will be dispersed so that no one will even approach the two-thirds vote of 36 required. The first ballot, it was said today, would certainly show votes for Gasparri, de Lai, Pompili, la Fontaine, Boggianni, Luaidi, Maffi, Merry del Val and Mercier.

The second ballot, however, it was added, would approach the prescribed two-thirds. If the necessary vote is not received by a candidate on the third or fourth ballot, it is most likely that at the fifth ballot on the morning of February 4, the majority of the sacred college will agree on a candidate outside of those who have received insufficient votes in the two previous days. Should this prove to be the case, a week from Saturday shortly before noon throughout the thousand rooms of the Vatican the cry will ring out of "habemus pontificem."

The assertion was made here today that any impression that a kind of rivalry exists between the Italian and the so-called foreign cardinals over the selection of a pope of Italian or non-Italian nationality was mistaken. Most of the so-called foreign cardinals agree on the advisability that the pope should be an Italian because of tradition, (only 48 popes were foreigners out of 260) because the seat of the papacy is in Italy (when it was at Avignon and perhaps half the Italians, making a total of less than 23 votes, insufficient to be elected).

This figure probably could not be augmented. It is said, as the cardinals of Germany, Austria, Hungary, Spain, Holland, and at least half of Italy, who have not sympathized with the attitude of the Belgian member of the sacred college during the war, and would not vote for him.

The only possibility of returning now, after several centuries, to a non-Italian pope, it is believed, lies in the selection of Cardinal Merry del Val, who, because of his long sojourn in Rome, is considered as an Italian. Yet his election is considered improbable.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 24.—Four persons were killed when an Indianapolis and Cincinnati traction twin street car automobile at a crossing here tonight. The dead were Calvin S. State Closes Case In Arbuckle Trial

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 24.—The prosecution closed today in the second trial of a manslaughter charge against Roscoe C. Arbuckle, reserving the right to examine witnesses in impeachment of one of its principal witnesses, Zey Prevost, a show girl. The prosecution charges that Miss Prevost made statements in her testimony which conflicted with testimony previously taken from her under oath.

Adolph Juel, and Milton Cayston, fingerprint experts, were called by the defense in an attempt to refute evidence offered by E. O. Hinrich, a similar expert.

Heinrich testified that fingerprints found on a door of Arbuckle's room in the Hotel St. Francis were those of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe, whose death was made the basis of the charge against Arbuckle.

Carlson testified that fingerprints can be forged beyond the possibility of detection by a layman. He said that the prints on the door did not compare with those of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe.

Juel testified that he could find "no positive comparison between the police fingerprints of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe and those on a door."

The prosecution contends that the fingerprints were made by Arbuckle and Miss Rappe while she was trying to escape from the room on the occasion of a party during which he is alleged to have fatally injured her. Under cross-examination Juel said, "I will not say that the prints on the door are those of Arbuckle, and Miss Rappe." He said also that the prints appeared to be those of a man and a woman.

HAMMERSTEIN'S DAUGHTERS WIN FIRST FIGHT IN CASE

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—Stella H. Keating and Rose Tostevin, daughters of the late Oscar Hammerstein, today won their court fight to oust their step-mother, Mrs. Emma Hammerstein, from the living quarters she occupied in the Manhattan Opera House.

Supreme Court Justice Alonzo G. Sinker granted the petition of the younger women and issued a writ of assistance, empowering the sheriff to eject Mrs. Hammerstein. Her occupancy was held to obstruct consummation of the lease to the Chicago Opera company, which is now in possession of the theatre. Hammerstein's daughters recently bought the property at a sheriff's sale.

Carlson testified that fingerprints can be forged beyond the possibility of detection by a layman. He said that the prints on the door did not compare with those of Arbuckle and Miss Rappe.

of mind. Time pressed, however,
and descending the stairs Sergeant Barry easily persuaded Kedge, to unceeded to force the drawers of the desk neatly and with dispatch, but the documents and ledgers with which it was filled told him nothing at all about the rigid form and fixed, glossy, stare of the melancholy, moth-eaten old hound in the corner seemed boring into his consciousness reproachfully as though even in death the beast stood guard and defend his master's possessions.

Leaving the desk at last he crossed, and examined the stuffed animal closely. It was, at the professor had said, redolent of turpentine and the stinky odor of taxidermy of other days. He was frowning one of those still silky ears when the door suddenly burst open with such force that it banged against the wall and Griswold strode in stopping short in amazement at the discovery and affront when he beheld the intruder.

Then his knee traveled to the rifed desk and found his voice in a string of oaths which left him panting and

Just in moment, Mr. Griswold?"

Barry remarked smoothly: "Your appointment was endorsed and your desk opened by official authority and I think your interview at headquarters will be a success. I am sure the hour must have told you that even you cannot combat it. Who owns this house now, dear?"

He shed the question so unexpectedly at the very moment that for a moment Griswold faltered. Then he replied with a gulp:

"The Gotham Realty Company."

"Who is the president of it?"

"I am, and I refuse to reply to any further questions!"

"Then," Mrs. Van had started to whisper, when he cut her off, "that you and she knew each other before she ever came here," Barry declared.

"Then she lied," Griswold cried, his temper rising again. "I need not lie to you, the woman!"

Certain Citizens Are Named by Watson

remained in lux tenebrae ever since the blanket charge was filed. Watson declined to accede to the request. The commission held an executive session and later returned and made it plain that unless the accused were named the session would be adjourned.

Watson then said that he would "withdraw," whereupon Mayor Wooding adjourned the meeting.

The most theatrical moment of the proceedings was when Attorney Watson shook his finger in the face of Sergeant Martin and stated that he believed personally that Martin was guilty.

The hearing opened at 10:25 o'clock and Mayor Wooding, chairman of the police commission, made a brief opening announcement, stating that they were ready for the hearing to begin. Attorney Watson then requested that the subpoena for the witnesses in the hands of Chief Bell be returned.

Watson then read the names of witnesses he had summoned to appear against Sergeant Martin. They were: R. P. Moss, Chief of Police; J. R. Bell, first cousin of Sergeant Martin; Ed Disharoon, W. T. Shelton, Will Moore (colored), Alice Moore (colored), Lonnie Lee (colored), J. T. Gosney, Arch Morgan, Hugh Turner, Hugh Chappel, Chester Touchstone, John Tucker, Henry Miller, Frank Miller, Frank Riley, W. J. Harris, Charles Thoms, E. A. Tucker, Charlie Gry (colored), F. T. Reagan, G. W. Pulliam, Jr., London B. Campbell, Ernest Covington, John Reynolds, Arch Dunn, Sergeant J. L. Edwards, Patrolman W. T. Kessler, Patrolman O. T. Cook and Detective J. N. Campbell.

Counsel for Sergeant Martin then requested that the nature and scope of the enquiry, whether limited or unlimited, specific or general and the period of time the charges cover, also the circumstances be made known. In reply the attorney for the "certain citizens" said that the charges cover a period of several years and allege improper conduct as a police officer. He said that all were general with the exception of one, this specific charge charging Sergeant Martin with collusion with men engaged in the liquor business.

The attorney said "I am here with the evidence and will support the charges made." He declared that the charges were not made by men with animosity against the accused officer, but by citizens of Danville, who have a right to bring any charge against a public officer they see fit. He said that these citizens had concluded that Sergeant Martin had not performed his duties properly as a police officer and was not qualified and fit for the position.

Attorney Watson then reached an angry mood and declared that he himself was confident that Martin was an improper man for the place he held, at the same time pointing his finger in the officer's face, shouting out to him the convictions of his own mind.

Sergeant Martin looked him square in the eye all the time, wearing a smile on his face and bowed politely when Watson concluded his remarks.

Counsel for the officer then requested that the names of the citizens preferring the charges be made known, whereupon the opposing attorney replied that if any good reason could be given to the contrary he would disclose the names. Another request was forthcoming from Sergeant Martin's counsel, who recognized the right of any citizen to bring a charge and that it was a question of rights and justice that the accused know who were bringing the charges. The attorney of the commission then announced that in their opinion the names should be divulged and requested that this be done.

Watson in reply, declared that he declined to reveal the names of the citizens, claiming that there was nothing in the law that requires names of men bringing charges to be disclosed. He also said that there were many reasons why he wanted to keep the names secret.

The commission then made another demand that the list of names be divulged, as both they (members of the commission) and the accused were in perfect rights to know the party or parties responsible for bringing the charges.

Watson then declared with finality that he refused to make known the names and announced that he would withdraw from the case. Almost instantly the words, "The court is adjourned," came from Mayor Wooding, chairman of the police commission.

At this unexpected development, a great demonstration was staged and yells from the hundreds of spectators were sent up. Hats were thrown to the ceiling and a crowd surged forward to grasp the accused officer's hand. As the throng rushed forward in leaving the courtroom, Attorney Watson jumped into his chair and yelled, "Wait a minute, I have changed my mind, waving his hands for the spectators to come back. As soon as quiet again he announced that he had decided to disclose the names of the certain citizens, and the courtroom was again silent, with every spectator straining his ears for the following proceedings.

Watson then asked the commission that an adjournment of ten minutes be granted. He announced that if there were any of the citizens in the courtroom at the time who did not wish that their names be divulged to come to his private office or either telephone him. His request was granted and an adjournment of ten minutes was taken.

At one stage of the loud talking and the unnecessary commotion, the mayor announced that if the spectators did not keep quiet he would be forced to adjourn to his private office to continue the hearing. This announcement soon resulted in the courtroom becoming quiet again.

Gossip Is What Ruins Young Girls, Says Judge Lindsey's "Lady Cop"

MISS RUTH VINCENT

BY EDWARD THIERRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—"Gossip ruins more girls' lives than anything else."

That's Miss Ruth Vincent's opinion. She knows, for that is her business—helping girls to unravel the tangled skeins of their lives.

She has been called Denver's "Lady Cop." But she is not merely a policeman. Her title is "Chief Officer for Girls of Denver." Often she is also court, judge and jury.

"Public courts hurt rather than help wayward girls," Miss Vincent said, while on a vacation in New York.

"A woman's court should not be a public room, where morbid-minded people can sit and listen to testimony about a girl's innermost life. That breeds gossip."

Privacy Is Needed

"When a girl meets misfortune she is not ruined—as people are fond of using the word 'ruined'—unless other people know about it."

"We need privacy in the courtroom in cases of this kind. All cities should adopt this method."

"In Denver there is as much privacy as in a doctor's office. A girl is arrested—or perhaps she comes in voluntarily. She is not frightened by

Truth is Mighty and Shall Prevail

The universal popularity of Studebaker Cars is attested by the fact that the corporation enjoyed the biggest business in its history in the year of 1921.

The sales of Studebaker Cars were 29% greater than in 1920, notwithstanding the fact that the total number of cars sold of all other makes (except Ford) was 40% less than in 1920. Stated otherwise, Studebaker's ratio of sales was 129 and the total of other makes 60, as compared with 1920.

The number of Studebaker Cars sold in the year of 1921 in both Greater New York and in the Metropolitan District exceeded the sales of any other make except Ford.

Studebaker is the world's largest producer of six-cylinder cars.

The only possible explanation of the popularity of Studebaker Cars lies in their quality, durability and dependable performance in users' hands. Proof that the cars stand up in service with minimum repairs is evidenced by the fact that our sales of Repair Parts in 1921 were 12% less than they were in 1919, notwithstanding that 118,000 new cars were sold and put in operation in 1920 and 1921. Based on the total estimated number of Studebaker Cars in operation in 1921, we sold $16.00 worth of parts per car for repairs from all causes, including accidents.

The materials and workmanship in Studebaker Cars measure up to the highest standards known to the automobile industry. Substantially better intrinsic values cannot be obtained at any price. The theory that high prices necessarily mean fine cars is fallacious, simply because prices are not based upon intrinsic values but upon production costs of individual makers, which vary widely according to their ability and manufacturing facilities. Obviously, high costs of production, inevitably arising from incompetence or inadequate manufacturing facilities, mean not only high prices but actually inferior cars.

With $70,000,000 of actual net assets including $36,000,000 of plant facilities, Studebaker stands unsurpassed in ability and resources to manufacture economically and give the greatest intrinsic value possible for a given price.

The Bee, Monday, January 30 to had a new association of motion picture producers and distributors.

A real moral cleansing, and not a campaign against extension of censorship of films, as indicated in some quarters, is the purpose of the association which will pay him $150,000 a year when he resigns as postmaster general, Mr. Hays declared.
"I will head what you might term
a moral crusade in the film industry after March 4," Hays said. "There nothing in this talk that the people with whom I will be associated plan a campaign against extension of censorship of motion pictures. They have never mentioned censorship to me in any way in my negotiations with them."
"We have two objectives. We will attempt to attain and maintain the highest possible standards in motion picture production and seek to develop the moral and educational value of motion pictures to their highest degrees."

MILLION DOLLAR FIRE
AT NIAGARA FALLS
BUFFALO, Jan. 24.—Fire late today destroyed the Niagara Falls high school, causing damage of more than a million dollars. There were seventy students in the school at the time and all escaped without injury although a large quantity of glass from the dome of the building crashed to the corridor as they were hurrying out.
Several explosions in the chemical laboratory helped the flames. Fire Chief Otto Utz and Fireman James McArdle were slightly injured.

FIRST PERFORMANCE GIVEN
NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—The Metropolitan Opera company tonight gave the first performance in America of Rimsky-Korsakoff's fantastic opera "Sneгурotchka" or the "Snow Maiden" with Madame Bori in the title role. The opera was sung in French and participated in by the corps de ballet.

MURDER TRIAL BEGINS
ASHEVILLE, Jan. 24.—Trial of Fred Fulham and Sidney Ballard on charges of first degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting from ambush several weeks ago of Theodore Taylor, was begun here today in Superior court. Young Taylor was shot as he was riding home in a car, from a church in company with his cousin and two young girls.
Jealousy was said to be the cause of the shooting.

Camp School For Disabled Failure

BY HARRY HUNT

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 25.—If you were a failure in the World War it would not put in weeks and months in intensive training at one of Uncle Sam's great army camps with its ramshackle temporary buildings, living and dining and sleeping in huts, but out from the normal contacts of civil life.

If in the fighting you received an injury or contracted an ailment that brought you under the government's order to provide vocational training as in aid to your rehabilitation—And if when you came to get your training, you learned that you must return to one of the old army camps now more dimly and depressing than before, again sever ties with relatives and friends, cut yourself off from more from touch with the currents of normal life, live again in barracks, your contacts limited to those with other men wounded or disabled through their war services.

Or would you feel that with all the opportunities for vocational education in civil institutions throughout the country, or of training that could be had in specialized shops and factories where you could feel yourself a part of the civil community where social and friendly contacts could be maintained, you were being unfairly punished unjustly treated and your opportunities for both education and growth rigidly restricted?
